The Rainwater-Bradford Hat Co. has always borne the reputation of being one of most responsible business concerns in the city, and its failure is therefore a great surprise on all sides.

A closer and more minute examination affairs of the house. "I can make tailed statement of the condition of the hoots just at this time. Experts are engaged in casting up accounts, and until that work is completed the exact smount of the defalcation cannot be stated. We have proceeded far enough though to know that Silva has taken more than $100,000, and it is probable that the amount will reach $125,000. It has been a crushing blow. He has been stealing for years at the rate of $30,000 a year perhaps. It is most extraordinary that my attention was never called to their that he was gambling on 'change and at the races. It must have been commonly known and yet not one of my friends ever came to me about it. One would have thought that somebody would have thought that somebody would have said, for instance, 'what sort of man is that you have managing your affairs?' when they learned of his course, but nobody ever did and I went on bilindly trusting him. I never heard that he played the races or speculated on 'Change. I thought him a man of no extravagant habits. I had raised him practically, had him here ever since he was a boy, and supposed I knew all about him. The house had been going on as usual meeting its obligations, and I had no apprehensions of any kind of trouble, because I knew the character of the mer chants with whom we dealt and that we were conducting a good safe business. Why, some of our customers have been dealing with us for twenty-five years. There was little or no risk in handling such trade, and I was positively sure that we were suffering no business losses. Under those circumstances and believing that Silva was perfectly trustworthy. I and my partners never once suspected that we were being robbed until at last Silva had stolen so much that he began to make inroads upon our capital. Then we began to look into the affairs of the concern, because we knew that with ordinary management there should have been plenty of capital, We put experts on the books, and it was soon found that large sums of money had been misappropriated."

money had been misappropriated."

"What was silva's method of covering up his stealings?"

"He simply forced balances, and as we did not question them things went on for years without our knowing that anything was wrong. If his receipts in a day were $2,000 or $3,000 he would enter in the cash book all the money he had received and add the columns up to suit himself. If an error was detected he would make some excuse, account for the deficit by saying that such and such a bill had been discounted. There was nothing original in his method. It would have been discounted in an instant by an expert or by any of us if we had examined the figures. The fact is that being left entirely to do as he chose with no one to question his accounts, Silva could have stolen from $500 to $1,000 a day without being caught. He was general accountant, had charge of all the books and was the judge of credits for the house, so you may see how he was trusted."

When Maj. Rainwater referred to his former employe's breach of trust and ingratitude he was visibly affected. "It was like a clap of thunder," he said, and then turning his back said." I don't want to talk about it. "The reporter asked how long it had been since Maj. Rainwater had suspected that there was crookedness in the accounts. The answer was that it was several weeks since he had ordered the books experted. "As soon as we found that there was not money enough to carry on the business we became suspicious. We called silva to ac-money is so scarce that they can't remit. I don't know what to do about it, but if you desire I will bring suit, though I doubt the policy of deing that as they have been good customers heretofore." It has been found that on the day that Silva declared ne could not give Maj. Rainwater the $5,000, he had taken $8,000 himself.

ALLOWED TO ESCAPE.

Why the man who has for a month past been known to his employers as an ambez-zier, and was not apprehended ere this, is the queerest phase of the great crime. The firm say they temporized with their thieving ecretary in the hope of securing as much real estate as possible to cover up his short-age. They did not realize one-fifth of the age. They did not realize one-fifth of the amount alleged to have been stolen, and when they obtained possession of his money there was a period of delay that resulted in his escaps. There seems to be a misapprehension—a lack of understanding at least—between Maj. Rainwater and the drm's attorney. 'r. John W. was one of the most daring and heavy speculators on the local turf. He was a familiar figure at the East Side race track and at the Fair Grounds during the race meetings, and is also said to have played heavily at times in the downtown pool rooms. Across the river he was known to the Cashiers of the foreign book as a plunger who played with varying luck; $100 to a race was the usual amount of his bet. At the Fair Grounds track his commissions were even greater. Local turfites remember him as the man who made the killing on Mystic a few years ago. He pulled out $1,300 by the race. To his intimate friends he claimed to have had a dream the night previous to the race in which he saw Mystic win. He became a confirmed gambler. The loss of fortunes is a deliy occurrence on the turf. The local turfites could not tell just what Silva dropped in his race track ventures.

He got in on Yavapai, Black Oak, Sheridan and other good ones, which broke lots of good St. Louisans when the mining craze was at its height and everybody wanted to get lich out of mother earth. He was also in a lead mine at Zinkite, a mile from Joplin, Mo. After the mine had been worked for a year and proven no good Silva bought out the controlling interest, giving part cash and the balance in notes indorsed by J. C. Bradford. When the notes fell due they were taken up. The party who held these notes said he was not certain of the initials, but that the indorsers' name was Bradford. After the failure of the mining game he became a great gambler on corn in puts and calls. Three years ago he was long on corn and boasted that some of the shorts would be up in the air when the deal closed. He got out about even on this deal and started at the ponies. He would bet a thousand dollars off the reel like the average race track fend would bet ito. He was a high roller and would gamble on anything. He heard the little ones prattle about "papa," when they meant Booth, and the latter was forced to decamp. The blow to his feelings unset his mental equilibrium. Meanwhile Busby resumed his office as husband. A few days after Booth's departure, Busby awoke earlier than his wife, she says and claims, he took is which was under her pillow. "Well." said Booth.

"Now I don't want to have any trouble with you, so you had better leave."

A few more remarks were passed and Booth left. Busby himself was forced to leave a few days later, and shortly after his departure, Booth came to the house one evening, without hat, coat, or shoes. "Birdie." It is said, "get on your clothes and come to the East Side, the carriage will be here in a few minutes." The man talked in a rambling manner about her getting a divorce from Busby, about jewies and silks for Birdie and a home in the West End. The woman was fearful that Busby would return and do something rash and terribiand and she got rid of Booth by telling him that the carriage had come and gone. He symptoms of insanity grew, and on last Tuesday Booth was taken to the City Hospital.

He had been with us for fifteen years and had been drawing a salary of $2.500 a year. I supposed that he had saved at least $1,000 a year. I never put my foot in his house in my life and never go out that way. If I had ever seen the house he has built and was living in I would have 'rapped to him,' as the detectives say, in a minutc.'"

H. A. Blossom, who held a power of attorney from Vice-President Bradford, is the man who first called attention to the fact that the balances had been forced. He is an expert accountant and when the balance sheet was given to him to examine he said to his!, Rainwater that they were wrong.

"Yon don't mean to say they have been forced?" asked the Najor.

"That is what I mean," said Blossom, and he then proceeded to show al. Rainwater the inaccuracies. The matter was promptly called to the attention of the other interested persons, and it was decided to have the books examined.

"No, sir, he never did admit anything until about three days ago when the experis had got far enough on with their work to make the fact apparent. Then he had to acknowledge that he had been stealing. Up to that time he stoutly contended that everything was straight, and the trouble was caused by dull times."

"When at lest he did confess, did he tell how he had happened to fall?"

"Yes, it was the old story. Tears came into his eyes, and he told us that he had begun to use our money five years ago. He said that he felt confident that he could make money if he had some to operate with. He finally got so deeply involved that the only course open to him was to go forward. Like any other gambler he continued to plunge until he had played his last card and then came the contession."

During the interview Maj. Rainwater referred to Silva's frugal habits, evidently hardly able yet to realize that his book-keeper had not really borne the character he had always attributed to him. Silva said he didn't have money enough. Collections had amounted to practically nothing. Maj. Rainwater asked for as much money as he had and Silva said he had none at all. He had taked earnessity about the hard times, saying: "I have written to these people time and again asking them to settle up and they write back that "You'll have to ask Maj. Rainwater about that.

When Maj. Rainwater was asked why Silva had not been arrested as soon as the shortage was discovered, he said, "We had to temporize with the man. The firm's affairs were in such a condition that for the benefit of our creditors I thought it best to let matters run along smoothly for him until we got what we could out of him. It was not much to be sure. He had plenty of property, a surprising lot, a great deal in his wife's name, but all of it so encumbered that the equities he turned over to us will hardly reach $18,000. Yet that was a great deal under the circumstances. We could not have securred these deods from him had we insisted on his arrest."

"Was no effort made to watch him?"

"Yea we had a private detective to keep track of him. I don't know the detective's name. Mr. Overali was looking after that matter. I understand the police have been notified, but he will be arrested and prosecured. If he has left the city he will be sent after and traced until he is brought back here to answer for this."

COLORS OF THE BARTH. Crimson Cliffs of Greenland-Reflected

From the Youth's Companion.

The wonderful difference between the same landscape in winter and in summer is a emperate zones. The two great elements of changes are the presence of snow in winter and of grass and leaves in summer. If we could look at our globe from the moon the variation in its aspect due to seasonal changes would perhaps be even more striking than it appears to those upon its sur-changes would perhaps be even more stracing than it appears to those upon its surface.

In fact, we sometimes lose sight of the very important part which vegetation plays in giving color to what might be called the countenance of the planet.

It is not the higher forms of plants that always produce the greatest effect in this way. Some of the most striking scenes upon earth owe their characteristic features to mosses and lichens. The famous "crimson cliffs" of Greenland, which extend for miles northward from Cape York, derive their splendid color from the growth of red lichen which covers their faces.

The cliff rises between 1,700 and 2,000 feet straight from the water's edge, and being composed of gray granite, their aspect would be entirely different from what it is, but for the presence of the lichen.

Coming to less magnificent, but not less besutiful scenes, the rocky pass cailed the Golden Gate in the Yellowstone national park owes its rich color and its name to the yellow lichen covering its lofty walls; and the indescribable hues of the great hot spring terraces arise mainly from the presence of minute plants flourishing in the water that overflows them.

Considered as a whole, the vegetation of a planet may give it a characteristic aspect as viewed from space. Many have thought that the red color of Mars may be due to the existence of red instead of green vegetation there.

That its broad expanses of forest and prairie land cause the earth to reflect a considerable quantity of green light to its neighbors is indicated by the fact that at the time of the new moon a greenish that has been detected overspreading that part of the lunar surface which is then illuminated only by lights from the earth. But soon these things will be changed, and the department will have new quarters over in the National Museum Building, where there will be much more light, air and working space than at present, and where, with the additional shelf space at command, there will be some hope of arranging the collection for display purposes. space than at present, and where, wat the additional shelf space at command, there will be some hope of arranging the collection for display purposes.

One of the latest collections received is from Central America, where Mr. Richmond, one of the gentlemen who has done a good deal of collecting for the department, has lately gathered a large supply of snakes, many of them rare species, but which have not yet been handled or classified.

The collection of snakes to which Prof. Steineger is now devoting the most of his available time is a lot lately received from East Artica, where they were collected by Mr. Chanler. In the present lot, which have been partly selected add classified, there are, strange to say, but two venomous snakes, one the black-secked cobra, and the other a delicate sky-blue specimen as yet unnamed. If one may judge from the collection, the snakes of Artica are a very morbid and meiancholy set, and blue is the color chiefy articled by them, there being a number of specimens of a bright cerulean hue, the most of them tree-climbers. There are several burrowing snakes, blunt-tailed specimens of a low organization, probably the sans culotte of snakedom. One of these, however, was of rather a gorgeous color, being light below and dark above the orange-colored trimmings on the side.

There were also in the collection a number of specimens of the true chameleon, which, probably through disgust at their immersion in the alcohol bath had turned blue, like the tree snakes, and remained a fixed color, "dyed in the wool" as it were.

One of the intereging specimens of the collection is an infant crocodile of very tender age, probably butlately emerged from the shell. There are lighted in number of a probably and specimens of the collection there will be obtained some new specimens not before described.

Useful Work Accomplished by the Old War Ship Kearsarge. Recently the old war veteran the U.S.S.

Kearsarge was sent to destroy a particularly dangerous wreck off the entrance to Delaware morning of Sept. 28 arrived near the position of the reported danger. The position had to be accurately determined by astronomical of the reported danger. The position had to be accurately determined by astronomical observations, for no land or lighthouse was in sight from which to recton by compass bearings.

The danger sought had been described as two spars sticking out of the water to the height of about eighteen feet, a rather small object to see on the sea even in daylight unless close to it.

Arriving on the exact position as reported, nothing could be seen of the spars, Search was begun on the plan nsed in the Coast Survey when looking for a shoal spot. It is known as the "starring" method or "running radials." This consists in running a few miles on any given course, then sieering a course at right angles for a few miles, then steering for the original position, passing it and standing or for a few miles, turning at right angles, running a few miles and then turning and running again for the original position. Ihis method, if continued, will cause the ship to describe a sort of Maltese cross around the original position. All this time a bright look-out was fept, many men being on the water, the water. The second tack brought success, and the ship was soon at auchor near the wreck. The exact position was latitude 50 deg. 5 min. north, longitude 74 deg. 9 min. west. The wreck was that of a very large three-masted schooner. The hull was on the bottom in seventeen fathoms of water, but the masts, with other wreckage, held in some manner by the rigging to the hull, projected above water. One of them was upright, but two of them were inclined, and all were boobing around in the heavy sea in such a manner as to make it extremely dangerous to approach them in a boat.

A cutter, in charge of the ordinance officer, interinguitions led to the conclusion that the decks of the hull must have split, and that the only part dangerous to navignation was the Soating wreckage, masts, spars, etc., that have the mile weeks.

One mast was pulled out with a hawser and more torpedos exploded disposed of the wreck. From an examination of the mast pulled out and the rigging and pasts of salis that still clung to it, it was evident that the schooner had been capsized in a suddan squall with all sali set. Probably all hands were lost.

A WRECKED BANK.

the Looting of the Madison Square in New York.

New York, Oct. 27.-Tha nine officers of the wrecked Madison Square Bank of this city, low under arrest, will be brought to face ave accusations. The fact that these rich and influential men were placed under bond, pending an investigation of their acts by the Grand-jury caused a sensation. They are: President, Joseph F. Blaut; Cashier. Thompson; Assistant Cashier, Charles E. Se lover, and Directors Adolph S. Kalischer, R T. McDonald, Simon Ottenberg, Frederick Uhlmann, Andrew L. Soulard and F. A. Kur-tharges against them are fairly set out by the attorney of the receivers, who have in-stituted the prosecution, Lawyer Unter-myer, who say: "The whole course of deal-ings on the part of the officers and directors of this bank is inconsistent with any idea of honesty, or, so far as the directors who were ignorant of the fact, are concerned, their ignorant of the fact, are concerned, their culpable negligence ought to be criminal, if it is not. Every statement made by the officials to the Bank Examiner for years past has been absolutely false in one or more material particulars. It has taken weeks to uncerth the depth of rascality involved in these transactions, but at last the receivers have the facts."

The whole history of the Madison Square Bank is a tale of wrecking. It was chartered unier very favorable circumstances, with a capital of $300,000, and afterwards, under President Blaut, increased to $500,000. W. Wetmore Cryder, the President before Blaut, had queer relations with it. Red dog and wild-cat securities were accepted, and Mr. Cryder's own paper was found among its assets.

in 1892, after Cryder got out, he sued on some of these accounts and people became suspicious, but they say all that funny business was straightened out before the big suspicious, but they say all that funny ouslness was straightened out before the big crash came.

When Cryder went out Joseph F. Blaut became President. Blaut began life as a waiter in a restaurant. David Merzesheimer and he subsequently became partners in a boarding-house. In 1879 to opened a real estate office in Pine street and Blaut was to do great things with the bank.
In Wall street they said he was a shrewd, careful, far-seeing and seinsh financier. R.
7. McDonald and Frederick Unimann, directors in it, were known to be speculators, but Blaut was called an investor.
Aug. 9 last the bank closed its doors. The St. Nicholas Bank, its Clearing-house agent, had refused to act for it.
Then scandals began. Politicians have been mixed up in it all the time. Ex-State Treasurer Fitzgerald owned 200 shares of stock and Gov. Flower is said to have fifty shares of it. Elliott F. Danforth, State Treasurer, had $20,000 of the State's money on deposit. A number of the directors in the bank were personally upon the bond securing the State's funds.

Mr. Danforth was warned of the approach-

The Clearing-house Committee visited the ink the afternoon before the closing, after celving the notice from the St. Nicholas at it would no longer clear for the Madison ware, and selected $550,000 of the bank's ast securities to secure the St. Nicholas rainst the Crafts of Danforth and Uhlmann, The St. Nicholas Bank was at that 'time mpty secured for an ordinary day's busies for the Madison Square. Later the ston of the Clearing-house Committee in sign these securities was reconsidered and they were returned to the bank to be classed with other assets.

Milès J. O'Brien and James G. Cannon were appointed receivers, and having employed Guggenheimer & Untermeyer as their counsel they started in to unravel the tangle. What a tangle it was! More wildcais and red dogs, more directors' paper and comething crooked everywhere. Something crooked, too, about things after the failure. Political influence prevented Messrs. Cannon olitical influence prevented Messrs, Cannon red dogs, more directors' paper and something crooked, too, about things after the failure. Political influence prevented Messrs. Cannon and O'Brien being made permanent receivers. While they were held off extraordinary efforts to reorganize were made by a few of the stockholders.

It was announced that four of the directors—McDonald, Blaut, Sellower and Soulard—owed the bank upon insufficient security about $70,000. The receivers' experts said they owed more.

The last statement made by the bank officials showed a considerable amount of undivided profits. The receivers falled to discover any undivided profits and it was found that the impairment of the bank's capital since July had been $298,914.

In the early part of July the bank was examined by the State Bank Department and it was learned that its capital was impaired to the extent of $75,000. After that examination the bank was practically in the hands of the State Bank Department, and financiers are considerably puzzled to know why the State funds were continued there when the State authorities were undoubtedly aware of the bank's condition. So far, no depositor, with the exception of the paculiaris fortunate State of New York and Mr. Ubimann, has received any money. There are in round numbers 1,000 aepositors, with a grand total of $700,000. The receivers have until now been able to realize upon securities sufficient to gather, with the cash on hand, an aggregate amount of $400,000. None of this can be disbursed to the depositors.

An explanation of R. T. McDonald's debt to the bank of $150,000 is now made. McDonald has been interested in the Fort Waye (Ind.) Electric Co. Six months or so ago he carried through a scheme of consolidation among the electric roads of New Orieans, forming the New Orieans Street-Rallway Co. He came here to place the bonds, met President Blant of the Madison Square Bank took $299,000 worth of the Madison Square Bank took $299,000 worth of the Madison Square Bank took $299,000 worth of the McDonald.

These notes were to be held

Since assuming control the receivers have continually stumbled upon notes given by people who have since said that filaut only received the benefit of them, and that they signed them at the request of officers or directors of the bank, who then discounted them and pocketed the cash, renewing the notes from time to time until the cash came. Such notes were among the assets turned over to the receivers when they assumed control.

over to the receivers when they assumed control.

Cashier Thompson, who it is now believed has given the receivers additional information of the methods pursued by Blaut and his directors, was utilized in this way: He says that he signed a note for $i,000 after repeated requests from President Blaut, who wished him to purchase forty shares in the Bridgeport (Ala.). Development Co. Mr. Blaut said that Bridgeport needed development, and that Bridgeport the action of the mote, took the forty shares and put then up as collateral with the note for an advance of $i,000, and drew his check to the siride-port Development Co. for that sum. Recently he sent his check for $305 to the receivers, which he said was the equity of all debt he felt like assuming in the transaction wherein he had been only a tool.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES.

Bethlehem Lutheran Church Dedicatio -Baptist Church Dedication.

The new Bethlehem Lutheran Church, at Florissant avenue and Salisbary street, will be dedicated next Sunday. At 9:30 o'clock believe that some such action was contemplated. Opinion was divided as to whether or not the influence of the indebted directors would prove sufficient to prevent an expose. It was openly said that the political affiliations of the directorate would prevent the public airing of dirty linen. The reorganization has now falled beyond a shadow of doubt, and it is known that the influence of the men who wrecked the bank was not sufficient to keep them out of the clutches of dedication, and a choir of the law. the congregation will assemble at the old preach in the morning and evening in the spire of the stately structure will water, Minn., will preach the sermon of dedication, and a choir of 140 members will sing Mozart's "Gloria Excelsis Deo." Rev. H. Engelbrecht of Chicago will preach in the afternoon Fort Wayne, Ind., in the evening. Rev. C. L. Janzow is pastor, and did much to push the new church to completion. It is 78x138 feet in dimensions, and the spire is 200 feet high. The building is a large, commodious edifice, with many architectural merits, and cost $60,000. The site cost $12,000, the frescoing $3,000, the organ $8,500, the frescoing $3,000, the organ $3,500, and the clock $500, so that the church in its completed state represents a goodly investment. The four bells, which weigh, respectively, 5,800, $275 and $75 pounds, were purchased by the ladies of the congregation for $2,300. The congregation was organized by Rev. S. F. Buenger, April 24, 1849, at New Bromen, then a suburb of St. Louis, and the church was dedicated Sunday, May 5, 1880. Rev. H. Fick succeeded Paston Buenger, and in 1855 Rev. A. Claus took charge, remaining pastor for nineteen years. A new church was built in 1853, and a parochial school established. Rev. E. O. Lenk became pastor in 1874, and Rev. Mr. Jansow in October, 1883. The church now has 284 voting members and 1,000 communicant members; the parochial school has 440 scholars, Since its organization Bethlehem Church has been the scene of 4,337 haptisms, 1,642 confirmations, 881 marriages, and 1,240

IMPERIAL MISSOURL

When Congressman Clark anostrophize Imperial Missouri he imbedded a great truth in the language of poetic fervor. Her greatness needs no proof, but shines in her growing prosperity. Some facts, however, garnered from the Manual of Missouri for the current year, just issued by Secretary of State Lesueur, and which, by the way, is an exceptionally valuable handbook of carefully compiled statistics and information of a general character, are useful to impress the particulars of Missouri's greatness on the public mind. Missouri is the fifth State in population and the eighth in assessed valuation. Her total population according to the eleventh census is 2,676,184, a gain of 28.26 per cent in ten years. The total assessed valuation of taxable property is $847,907,121, which is three times as much as it was at the close of the war. The area of the State is 900 square mile arger than that of Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Delaware combined. In all this vast area there is not a mile of desert land, and by reason of the remarkable variety of its agricultural and mineral products it can not only support ten times its present population but can come nearer to supplying all of its wants than any other equal area in the world. Missouri has wonderful resources minerals, the production of which is yet in the production of sine and second in pect of taking first place in the near enators will not be punished eternally or beds, and contains a great abundance of dence of great criminals in infinite mercy

Missouri has a vast abundance of the nest clays suitable for manufacturing and exhaustless stores of building stone. In variety and abundance of mineral springs she is not surpassed by any other State

Cotton is grown in the southern part of he State, while every kind of fruit and agricultural product known to the temrate zone can be profitably produced vithin her borders.

These are some of the facts which testify to the greatness of Missouri and which hould be known to every citizen. Let the knowledge that imperial Missouri offers opportunity for prosperity to millons of homeseekers be spread broadcast.

NO MORE BOND ISSUES.

An increase of the interest bearing debt in time of profound peace, as proposed by Senator Sherman and others, would be an unprecedented proceeding. Instead of strengthening the public credit It will look like a confession that we do not understand the ordinary laws of trade and that all the experience of the last fifty years has taught us nothing. It would be notice to the world that we have involved ourselves in financial confusion so inextricably that we can get out only by main strength and awkwardness.

Because with ordinary financial sense we can procure all the gold needed by means of the natural laws of commerce. Our gold has gone abroad in unnatural quantities only because we are tied up/in a maze of unnatural legislation. We have sought to help or hinder trade according to the whim of demagogues or the dictation of special interests and the consequence is that we lose gold and our credit is depreciated.

The first step toward a thorough reform of the finances is the repeal of the Sherman bullion-purchase law, which is perhaps the worst specimen of wildcat financipling this country ever saw. That law out of the way, confidence in the good sense and honesty of the Government will revive and foreign demand for our products and securities will supply us all the gold

If this policy is adopted, no increase of the bonded debt will be necessary. We shall work out of the labyrinth with no jar or friction and proceed unhindered along the appointed path toward prosperity and safety.

Containers-A Fight Between the Two Branches of the Trade Looked For-Talk of Establishing a Co-operative Wholesale House or Patronizing Some Outside Firm-What Retailers Say.

The Meyer Bros. Drug Co., Collins Bros Drug Co., Daugherty-Crouch Drug Co., Hop kins-Weller Drug Co., J. S. Merrell Drug Co. and the Momitt-West Drug Co., the six whole sale drug houses of St. Louis have entered into an agreemen or combine. A circular dated Oct. 28 re afternoon conveyed to the latter the first in timation they had of the move. So much dissension has been created among the retailers by the news that it promises to result in a lively fight between the wholesale and retail dealers which is apt to terminate either drug house in St. Louis or the boycotting of those now in existence. For some years past those now in existence. For some years pas the St. Louis wholesale houses have urged the St. Louis wholesale houses have urged unemployed druggists to establish themselves in business and have stocked them with goods and started them out in business on pretty much the same order as a brewery does a salcon. As a natural consequence drug stores have started up on nearly every other block in the suburbs, as they have found the business a paying one. A majority of them have their places nearly paid for. They were not compelled to carry large stocks as they could order their goods and have them delivered almost at a minute's notice from any wholesale house in the city. It is useless to state that all the retail druggists in St. Douis were surprised beyond comprehension when yesterday afternoon they received the following circular in their mail:

Mr. L. H. Barnes, representative of the Gaertner drag store, 1800 St. Ange avenue, is not in a very good humor over the existing state of affairs, and gave the opining of the proprietor as follows: "I heard Mr. Gaertner say just before he left for Chicago last alght that he did not propose to put up with any such business, and that if the St. Louis houses did not care to deliver the goods as he wanted them, he knew of a Cincinnati house that would. He did not pay what action he would take in the matter, but I am shout certain that he will refuse to patronize the St. Boals houses any longer, unless they do by him now as they have in the past. While such is not the case with our house there are quite a number of the retail stores who cannot afford to lay in a large stock of goods during these, hard times. They order their stock as they want t, knowing that if they order it in the morning they can receive it in the afterneon. If the wholesale houses shut down their delivery system, unless the local association comes to the lirescue, they will be forced to the wall, as they can neither afford to lay in a large stock or shut up shop and go down town wery time they want this or that article. If the present agreement is not cancelled in two or there weeks you will see more than one suburban druggist turn his keys over to the sheriff, an assignee or a wholesale house."

Druggist Chris Shaefer of 1820 Chouteau avenue does not appear to be much exercised. In fact be expressed himself as very glad to get rid of some of the drummers.

M. W. Alexander, the Olive street druggist, thought that the retail men would agree to all paironize one house which will grant them the old accommodations.

THE NEW YORK ASHORE. of a Pacific Vessel in Ean Francisco

BAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 27.-The City of New York, the Pacific Mail Co.'s steamer which sailed from this port for China and Japan at 3:80 yesterday afternoon, went hard on the rocks near Point Bonita, having gone on them under a full head of steam an I after she left port. Tugs from this city res-cued the passengers and crew and all of the cued the passengers and crew and all of the mail matter. The big steamer, valued at $500,000, will be a total loss, as this morning she was lying over on her port side with big holes stove in her bottom. The tide has receded and she is now high and dry upon the rocks and the surf pounding in upon her. Much of her cargo was thrown overboard. At 10 cicek this morning, when the tide was at its highest point, six tugs tried vainly to pull her off the rocks. They pulled and strained, but the big ship did not move. The attempt was then given up until daylight, when pumping out was started by powerful wrecking pumps. After 200 tons of her cargo mostly flour, were thrown overboard; order were received to leave the remainder in the vessel.

Charles Dunnenberg, who was brought into the case through the testimony of Louis Handel, appeared at the Coroner's office this morning after a night in the holdover. He testified that he was drunk when he met Handel, and denied that he told the latter that Goldsmith was murdered. "The names of the four people I had on the slip of paper were Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith, Fred Hunter and H. H. Mueller, the saloon-keeper on Papin street," continued Dunnenberg. "I saw Fred Hunter on Monday morning on Eleventh and Clark avenue, and he told me he was going to get some money. House of Refuge or the House of Good Shepherd.

Yesterday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon she called on Mrs. Jennie Batchelor of 1517 Washington avenue, asked for some old clothes and was admitted to the house to work for the clothes. Later a rather tough young man called at Mrs. Batchelor's and insisted on seeing the supposed boy. When retused admittance he became so unruly that Mrs. Batchelor had both of them arrested. The man, Harry of "Shorty" Rogers, as he gave his name, told the officers that his pal was a girl masquerading in boys' clothes and that he had met her at Alton with a man named Phil Bowen. She claimed Rodgers was a crook, but he denied it. He was sent to the Second District Police Court.

Explorer's Steamer Last Seen in a Vise of Ice Flore Near the Mouth of the Kara River-Nansen's Project Charac terined as Impracticable and Foolhardy by dec. Greeley—The Doctor's Last Researce.

oon, Oct. 27.-The evening papers this oon anhounce that news has been re-from Siberia of the loss of the ship with Arctic Explorer Nansen and his nions on board. The Palt Mail Gazette says that a Norwegian returning from Northern Russia brings news to the effect that since leaving Jugorschar Strait, other-wise known as Pet Strait, a narrow passage between the Northwest of Siberia and the Island of Valgata, the Fram was sighted by a number of Samoyedes, native inhabitants es of the Arctic Ocean, from the ngskee. The Fram is said to have been hted outside the Kara River and was rking heavily and awkwardly in the ice. cording to the Norweigian's story, it nd the buffeting from the lee as well as the pinching she was sure to receive. He tes that Nansen's temperament has greatly changed and that he seemed vaciliting, restless and melancholy. The Gazette concludes that had the Fram battled successfully with the ice, or Nansen and his followers e scaped to the coast, news of this event would have been received ere

It was on June 21 of the present year that Dr. Nansen's stanch ship Fram steamed out of the Varanger Flord and passed from the sight of Norway and of Europe. Bepending chiefly upon sall power, the explorer reached Tugorski Strait, the gateway of the Kara Sea, on Aug. 2. From this point Nansen sent home the last message that has been received from the voyagers.

home the last message that has been received from the voyagers.

All were then well, and everything in excellent condition; and the sea before them was yet free from ice. Their intention was to keep near the Siberian Coast until they reached the mouth of the Olenek River, near the Lena Delta. There, if convenient, they might stop to take on fresh supplies; but if not, they would steer boldly away from shore, toward the northeast. This course would bring them to the New Siberian Islands, where again they might stop for some of the supplies which have been stored for them on Koteinoi, the most western of the group; but it is not probable," wrote Dr. Nansen, "that we shall want them." They expected to pass Koteinoi in the early part of September. After that, all was speculation.

They expected to pass Kotelnol in the early part of September. After that, all was spoculation.

Nansen was proceeding on the theory that "a current is constantly running across the polar region somewhere north of Franz Josef Land from the sea north of the Siberian coost and Bebring Strait and into the sea between Spitzbergen and Greeniand." This being granted, the natural way to reach the north poles to enter the current where it runs northward and come out with it where it emerges from the arctic circle. This idea could be carried out, Nansen believed, either by encamping on an ice fice, living there and "floating across," or by being provided with a ship strong enough to withstand the pressure of the ice. It is the latter plan that Nansen followed. He firmly believed that the current would carry him to or toward the pole, and at any rate far into the vast unknown realm lying north of Wrangel Island and Point Barrow, the quarter of the Arctic zone in which least progress poleward has been made.

Should the woyagers be fortunate enough to hoat—ut-into awopen sea his indestructible ship would again use steam and salt.

Gen. A. W. Greeley of the Arctic expedition of 181, in a recent article, pronounces Dr. Nansen's theories absurd and his expedition an "illogical scheme of self-destruction." Gen. Greeley quotes Dall's paper on the "Hydrology of Behring Strait, or at all events, only a very superficial one, while underneath a current is running southward. This is assailing a bottom fact of the doctor's theory. Greeley cleims that no ship can be constructed of sufficient strength to withstand the crushing blows of the lee and float safely. The jarring masses of ice found in the Arctic seas would inevitably crush it. The journey of months near the pole, if not made impracticable by the existence of land there, would be horrible by reason of unbroken night, extreme cold, frost-bite, scury and other diseases. So mad did the whole thing seem to Gen. Greely that it seemed almost incredible that Nansen's expedition shou

Illinois Cemeteries Desecrated by Tomb

PRINCETON, Ill., Oct. 27.—Some unknown houls have during the past few weeks dese crated uearly all the cemeteries in Bureau, Henry and Kuox counties. Granite monu-ments have been overturned, urns and tombnes broken, and the graves themselve stones broken, and the graves themselves defield. The outrages are evidently motive-less, and are supposed to be the work of some maniac. Oneida, Kewanee, Yorkville, Buda and Galoa are the principal towns so far maniac. Oneida, Kewanee, 10th read and Galoa are the principal towns so far visited. Rewards have been offered for the capture of the perpetrator, but so far there is no clew. At Yorkville and Buda the same thing was repeated.

Big Guarantee Is Put Up, However Fugilistic Pointers-Pastime Athletic Club Notes-Track and Stable Gossip -Sporting News.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 .- Charley Mitchell wa in earnest conversation with "Phil" Dwyer in the Hoffman House last night when informed that Champion "Jim" Corbett had accepted the offer of $20,000 from the Olympic Club of New Orleans. He took the matter very coolly and said after a moment's re-fight between Corbett and myself. Anything fair will suit me. The Olympic Club's offer I consider is a fair one and you can say for me that I accept it under these condi-tions: First, that the Olympic Club officials send me expenses to New Orleans; second that they will guarantee me protection before and after the fight; third, if they are unable to pull off the fight that they will pay my training expenses.

"If they will comply with these conditions I will go to New Orleans within five days and agree to meet Corbett in their arena on the same date lagreed to fight him before the Coney Island Athletic Club. The New Or leans people will have to act quickly, for I am sick and tired of the whole affair and am anxious to have it settled definitely as soon as possible. Now let them speak and we will do the rest."

Charley Mitchell and Judge Newton recently met and indulged in a lengthy chat in onnection with the much-talked-of cham clonship fight. Just before the articles wer plonship fight. Just before the articles were signed by Mitchell to fight at Coney Island, the ex-matchmaker for that club promised him $1,000 for training expenses. The amount will be paid to Mitchell, so Newton says, by the club. In case it is not handed over Newton will draw his own check for the amount. This suited Mitchell, and the pair parted on excellent terms. But it would seem that Corbett, who wasn't promised anything, might be left in the lurch, although he is entitled under the contract to $5,000.

Harry Sharpe, Johnny Daly and Dan Cusack are still in charge of the Madison ville. The trio went over to that point last week, accompanied by Charlie Daly, to arrange for an early trial of the charges brought against them in connection with the Sharpe-Cresby fight which took place near Namecki, Ill., the early part of last winter. Sharpe was one of the principals and the Daly boys and Cusack were his backers and seconds. When they arrived in Edwardsville their bondsmen surrendered them, and Charlie Daly was the only one of the quartette able to secure a new bond. Crosby is getting in shape at Springfield, Mc., the home of his backer. Ed Burke. These two lightweights fought the best battle, when they last met, ever seen in this vicinity. Judge Carter Bets $200 on Yo Tambien at 7 to 5-Kansas City Race Meeting. John J. Carter, the presiding Judge at the course across the river, who is one of the best posted turf authorities in the West, is firmly convinced that Chris Smith's great mare, Yo Tambien, will win the great match race with Lamplighter and Clifford at Hawthorne to-morrow. Judge Carter is so sure that Marion's daughter will pass the wire first that he sent $200 commission to Chicago,

W. H. Cheppu is now making Frank Shaw's book at Kansas City. Shaw himself is still up in St. Faul. The Kansas City meeting is grawing well and every one at the track aimost bets, but the play is not large. Five big local pool-rooms do business on the races and shaw controls two of them. Clem Creveling of this city is the presiding judge at the meeting, and P. H. Butler, who, it will be remembered, raced a string at the course across the river last summer, is the starter. Three books and one field stand handle the money.

The property of the Madison County Fair and Racing Association, including the pretty little five eighths of a mile track at the other end of the Merchants' Bridge, will be sold to the highest bidder, on a mechanic's lien, Nov. 4. The track is in very bad shape and it is estimated that fully $20,000 will be required to put it in shape for racing again. The judges' stand has been wrecked completely and the timers' stand and most of the fances have been all but torn down and carried off by the surrounding residents. The grand stand is in bad shape and the betting ring has been converted into a stable. The track cost over $40,000 and the only meeting run over it lasted four days.

Dave Pulsifer, who campaigned the great Tenny several years ago, won nearly $20,000 by the victory of Drum Major at Linden yesterday. Jockey F. Bell, who rode for Charlle McCanferty at Hawthorne last winter, was killed while riding Catlin in the third race at Kansas City yesterday. Catlin stumbled and his unfortunate rider was trampled upon by the rest of the field.

INTERESTING TO WHEELMEN.

An Entertaining "Smozer" at the Pastime Club—Cycle Chat.

A varied and interesting entertainment was given by the bicycle division of the Pastime Athletic Club at their last smoter. The sport commenced with a five-minute wrestling bout between Messes. Luttbeg and Smith. This was followed by some fancy club swinging by all Newton. Messers. Willey and Patchin then did some very artistic work in the acrobatic line, after which Messers. Morris of the Mound City Athletic Club and Stelzner of the Business Men's Gymnasium sparred three rounds of three minutes each. The evening's entertainment wound up with a five-minute wrestling bout between Messers. Luttbeg and Cornwall, after which a lanch was served to all guests. It is intended to have an entertainment of this kind once every month during the winter season. The Pastime bicycle division is now the largest in the State, having a member-ship of nearly 100.

Within a few weeks the Racing Board of the League of American Wheelmen will meet to make recommendations for racing rules for next year. The Racing Board never was and is not now a unit in opinion as to the best means of dealing with the racing men who represent certain bicycle manufacturers, but a comparison of preferences at the coming meeting will, without doubt, result in a decision, as far as the Racing Board is concerned, as to whether the racing man may have his expenses paid by the dealer and whether the League will protect two classes, embracing the expense-paid rider and the strictly pure sportsman. The favorite belief among wheelmen is that more cash was paid by makers and dealers to riders this year, in violation of League rules and even to the extent of swearing to fake statements, than ever before.

Sporting Notes. Jimmy Ryan, the ball player, who was injured in Lake Shore wreck near Toledo last August, is still a famate of a hospital and may have to remain here all winter. It is expected that Ryan will be there all winter. It is expected that Ryan will be able to resume his place on the team next season. The recent challenge issued by McClelland, that champion runner, for a twenty-five-mile race, has found an acceptance in England. Chappy Warburton, the crack English runner, offers to come to America and run against McClelland. Warburton will alse back an unknown to ride any cyclist in this country any distance from ten to 1,000 miles.

MINICE AT THE POST-GRADUATE AND

restern Association of Bailway Surgeons was pened shis morning at 9 o'clock in the to be held there. Promptly on time many of the surgeons were seated in the amphi-theater and the first subject was brought before them. During the first hour other kept dropping in till the room was filled with visitors and many of the most prominent surgeons of the city. All who came stayed to the end of the clinic which, judging from the craning of necks to see every detail of the operations and the marked attention of the audience to the lecture of the operating sur-geon, was of more than ordinary interest to the Missouri Medical and the Post-Graduate lieges, had charge of the clinic, and was assisted by Drs. Doyt, Perkins, Dixon, Grant and Kennau. The first case was of a man affected with diffuse lipomata, or fatty protuberances over almost all parts of the man's body. Dr. Tuholsky gave first a history of the case and then set forth his reasons of operating. He stated without most vanience.

Dr. Recondless seid that in case No. 1 be had left some of the periosteum, and he thought that a very good plan, because it induced growth of the bone. This brought on considerable discussion. Dr. Fulton took issue with Dr. McCandless on the periosteum question and brought down on himself a number of inquiries by pothetical and categorical. After the had told of how he had treated a case of compound comminated fracture he was asked: "Did the patient have any periosteum?" "He had a little at first, but he didn't have any when I got through with Him," was the answer.

Dr. Heine Marks showed the doctors a case of comminuted fracture in which he said nothing had been done except to clean the wound and keep the bones in apposition. The arm had united and the patient had some use of it.

IDENTIFIED MATT KELLY.

Matt Kelly, a well-known crook and ex convict, was arrested at 1:30 o'clock this being one of two men who robbed George Smith of 2151 Geyer avenue of a $75 gold watch by means of a clever ruse. An advertisemen appeared in one of the daily papers for a cashier at $75 a month, a deposit of $400 being required as security.

The applicant was to call between 7

The applicant was to call between 7 and 8 o'clock last night at 1419 Pine street. Smith called, and the door was opened by a man who invited him to enter. As soon as he got inside he was set upon by two men who robbed him of his watch. Smith's cries for help attracted the attention of a man named Gaffney and the robber ran out the back door and escaped. Investigation proved the house to be vacant. The "For Rent" signs had been torn off. Cloths were hung in the windows for shades, and a lighted candle was found in each of the front rooms. Smith gave descriptions of the men to the police.

that the disease was hardly traceable to any irregularities in the patient's life, as he had been guilty of only such as were incidedtal to his business, but that it probably came as is usually the case from an inherited predisposition to abnormal developments of fatty growths. The patient wished those about his neck and face removed, as they attracted an unpleasant attention to himself.

Next was a mulatto boy 9 years of age, who was afflicted with tuber-rular arthritis of the hip-joint, commonly called white-sweiling. Dr. Tuholsky gave in brief the different methods in use of treating the disease and the reasons for course of treatment he had decided upon for this particular case. He stated that he had chosen this subject, for his cliaic, as one that could but be of more than ordinary interest to the medical world because of its being one of the commonest forms of tuberculosis; and a disease in the treatment of which they had made rapid advancement in the last few years, and yet offered a wide field for light in the future. He treated the case by the method of germicide—linjecting a solution of the bichloride of mercury into each focus of the tubercular generation. Several papers of interest were to have been read and discussed at the morning meeting, but by the time the clinic was over no time was left. On their way out of the hall the members of the association were "nailed" by a photographer and taken out the Lucas avenue entrance, where a platform had been erected on which their picture was taken.

They then repaired to Pickwick Hall for further business. Dr. F. J. Lutz, President of the hassociation, called the meeting to ornue entrance, where a platform had been erected on which their picture was taken. They then repaired to Pickwick Hall for further business. Dr. F. J. Lutz, President of the association, called the meeting to order. He stated that it had been the intention of the association to have several papers read, but that all of the members he had talked to had agreed that the clinics would be vastly more interesting than the reading of papers, so they had allowed the clinics to consume all the morning. He then said that if it be the pleasure of the members he would suggest that they adjourn for dinner as they would barely have time by so doing to reach the Alexian Brothers' Hospital where he would conduct a clinic at 2 p. m. He said he would make his clinic as short as possible, so as to allow any one who desired to do so to read the papers that had been formally prepared. The meeting them adjourned.

CLINIC AT THE CITY HOSPITAL. Visiting Surgeons Witness Several Interesting and Instructive Operations.

The raflway surgeons had an interesting linic at the City Hospital yesterday after-oon, instead of a regular session at the kwick Theater. Dr. Heine Marks, Supertendent of the institution, had plenty of tients on hand to do duty for almost any kind of case the doctors could have desired to discuss and was ready with hair a dozen kind of case the doctors could have desired to discuss and was ready with half a dozen "beautiful subjects" that just fitted the cases the programme marked for consideration. The attendance was large, the hospital amphisheater being scarcely able to hold all the eager minipulators of cold steel who were present. Two female medical students were in the room. Several hospital attendants conducted to the table a man who was suffering from hip disease. He disrobed and stretched himself on the glass panels with a degree of unconcern that would have been mistaken for true heroism if Dr. Outten had not quickly informed the surgeons that no operation could be performed on the patient. With a tone of deep segret be said that the man would not lef him cut his leg off. He had hoped to show them an interesting operation, but owing to the prejudices of the patient, he would have to refrain. The doctor said he believed the subject's wishes should be consulted when it came to a question of amputation, and while he differed from him he had not cared to argue the point with him. So this man escaped after Dr. Outten had explained the advantages of the Jordan hip joint amputation.

The next subject was a young man who had the advantages of the Jordan hip joint amputation.

The next subject was a young man who had been runover by a car and suffered a compound comminated fracture between the race and hip. This man had also preferred to have his leg on than or, as he was of the opinion, Dr. Outen said, that almost any kind of leg was better than no leg. Remarkable as it might seem, the leg had healed and its owner was not seriously troubled by it except in the matter of locomotion. It had been thought by the physicians that the limb should be removed, but as it turned out it seemed that nature had done more than the doctors.

Dr. Wm. A. McCandless then displayed what were pronounced two pretty cases of communited fractures of the arm. Two plates full of bones that had been extracted from the arms of the men were passed around among the physicians for examination. One of the specimens was a young man of 19 years of age who had had several pieces of bone extracted from just above the siloo. Mr. Hitt of Illinois, formerly Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, says the difficulty of dealing with the Hawaiian problem can not be overestimated. Annexation with the peculiar conditions existing in the islands was something that might well purifie the wisest statesman. With the Chinese troubles we have in this country now, the additional question which the annexation of the islands would raise, not only in regard to Chinese, but Japanese and the natives of the islands, was one which would naturally cause some deliberation before the islands were annexed as a territory and intended for Statehood. It would be the height of absurdity to try and set up the old Queen and restore her to power. To establish a protectorate would mean to abandon republican form of government for the islands. A protectorate would not mean that this Government was to offer its protection alone, but that it intended as well to govern the islands as a possession. If

The ball grazed her hair, but did not touch the scalp.

Yet the School Board removes the polling place from 503 West Jefferson avenue, where Mr. Carlisle had established it, to 2815 Chouleau avenue, in the northwestern part of the precinct.

two lines of cars running through the precinct meet at this point and give easy access to the poils. The reason the School Board changed the location is probably because they could not get the old quarters and were compelled to move to 3500 North Market street, where, though more difficult of access, there will not be a great hardship worked.

There is no reason in quarreling about the change in Precinct 184 of the Twenty-fourth Ward for the change is only about a block farther east from where it was,

Vandeventer the the goat grew and prospered.

His natural instincts adapted him for the business for which his foster father had selected him. He was in a sense to the manor own, a thrifty and industrious garbage inspector, collector and reducer.

He was always inclined, however, to be obstreperous and could not be induced to conform strictly to all the orders which Col. Ed issued for the squidance of the Sengambian collectors. William would tackle a lin can, a hoop skirt, a dish rag or a newspaper with the same avidity and relish that he would the strictly pure article of garbage, and this was demoralizing to the other collectors. He also failed to discriminate between the various styles of garbage pails. Nevertheless be displayed such activity, push and perseverance that the coss soon made him chief deputy.

boss had gone down into Arkansas and he was afraid that everything was not working exactly right.

"I saw him out in the yard there Wednesday," said Jeff, "sizing up two or three daily papers. He chewed off certain portions, swallowed them and I suppose dispessed the news. He must have learned from them that Williams was making charges against the boss and trying to do him up in his absence. So Billy just started out yesterday morning to take a hand in the business himself."

Whether this be the correct information cannot be ascertained, as Deputy Collector Billy is somewhat sore and battared up after his experience, and when seen this morning by a Posr-Dispatch reporter refused absolutely to discuss the matter.

Leaving the headquarters about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, this natural scion of the garbage race meandered up the cross streets and alleys towards Grand avenue. One or two dogs along the route who disputed his authority were treated to a battering-ram argument which had decidedly convincing results. He was not particular whether the garbage was in patent pails or plain ordinary buckets. In fact he seemed to prefer it in tin cans, as he made a clean sweep then of both container and contained. After whetting his appetite in this manner for a haif hour and succeeding in attracting quite an enthusiastic audience of small boys and dogs, who kept their distance, Col. Butter's deputy reached the alsey just south of olive street, on Grand avenue, which leads to the kitchen of the Grand Avenue Hotel.

the alley just south of Olive street, on Grand avenue, which leads to the kitchen of the Grand Avenue Hotel.

William in appearance is not a foe to be despised. He weighs about ninety pounds, stands as high as an ordinary St. Bernard, is gray in color and armed in front with a pair of corrugated horns that would do justice to a Texas steer. The door of the kitchen was open, and as he was bent on business he walked in and tackled a pan of peeled potatoes. One of the assistant cooks tried the "shoot" racket on him and this put Billy on nis mettle. He charged right and left, quickly rendering two male and three female assistants hors de combat.

The balance fied and left him master of the situation. He improved this by chewing up two hapking and scattering around several baskets of vegetables. By this time Dominick, the chief cook, arrived and with the assistance of "Jeff," who was out looking for Col. Billy, they succeeded in tying him up and carting him back to headquarters.

Col. Ed says he will present him a medal.

A COUGAR STORY.

His Horse Ran Away With the Beast and Eaved His Master's Life.

Co., had a rather startling adventure with a cougar about a week ago. He was at the Hotel Perkins yesterday, and, speaking of his experience to some friends, said:

"Last Sunday morning I mounted a horse and went on a hunting expedition to a place about twenty miles from Perhama, taking with me an Irish staghound and an English pointer. I brought down a deer and a brown bear, which left at a farm house, and bagged a number of wild pigeons and other fow!.

"White returning home about 10 o'clock at night along a lonely road, about five miles from Perhama, I noticed what seemed to be two bails of fire in a tree but a yard ahead of me, and which stood but a foot or two from the road. At the same instant my horse, which is known in the cow counties as an 'original herder,' drew up with a startled neigh, almost throwing me from the saddle. I took a close look at the thing in the tree and saw that it was a cougar, crouched for a spring.

I took a close look at the thing in the tree and saw that it was a cougar, crouched for a spring.

"As I tried to unstrap my rifle the animat sprang, but missed its mark and passed juss over the horse's neck and about two inches from me. It rolled in the road, but recovered and sprang again, this time at the horse's throat. The horse bucked and threw me to the ground, half stunning me. The cougar their ushed upon me, but the staghound, which had been standing by, baying furiously, corraied it. There was a brief but terrific fight, and the dog lay dead not five feet from me. The pointer had disappeared, while the horse stood trembling in every limb. The panther again sprang at him, landing upon his back, and away the horse went.

"I recovered my feet in a few minutes, unstrapped my rifle and started in pursuit. Ive hundred yards from the scene of the enounter I found the horse standing still and he cougar lying dead at his feet. The horse bore marks of the cougar's claws upon his back, and his fiesh was torn in several places. The cougar's head was smashed, presumably by the theory that a limb of a large oak tree, hanging low and directly over the road, struck the cougar and swept it off the horse's back, and the horse took advantage of the opportunity to trample him to death. The horse is victous, as all 'original herders' are. These horse have been known to fight for hours, until one or the other fell, but this is the first time I have heard of one fighting a cougar. I have the animal's skin and will keep it as a memento of the encounter. The horse was not badly injured, and will soon be ready for service again."
